10/17 Mapping Cardiovascular Health: Leveraging GIS in the Tennessee Heart Health Network   Esra Ozdenerol
University of Memphis GIS Certificate Program Director Esra Ozdenerol, PhD, explores the application of Geographic Information Systems (GIS) in understanding and addressing cardiovascular diseases within the Tennessee Heart Health Network. It highlights how GIS is used to visualize spatial patterns, identify risk factors, and guide targeted interventions to improve cardiovascular health outcomes in the region.
Presented at 11:00 am central time - register here

10/22 Processes for Interviews with Community-based Organizations   Adam Nelson
In this presentation Center for Transforming Communities Data Integration Manager Adam Nelson focuses on helping primary care practitioners learn how to identify and implement evidence-based practices and better understand resources for addressing social determinants of health (SDOH). He shares the Center for Transforming Communities' experience in working with community- based organizations – the groups that address SDOH and provide neighborhood specific-culturally competent care. These connections enhance primary care by addressing the social challenges that impact health outcomes.
Presented at noon central time - register here

10/22 Health Coach Training and Certification   Susan Butterworth & Joyce Brown
This session will explore the opportunities for health coaches in Tennessee, as well as provide information about the training and certification programs in the state. Presenters are Susan Butterworth, PhD, Associate Professor and Director of Patient Engagement Center for Health System Improvement, and Joyce Brown, a recent graduate of the UTHSC Health Coach Certification program who will share her recent experiences in the field.
