Mapping Cardiovascular Health: Leveraging GIS in the Tennessee Heart Health Network

Thursday, October 17, 2024, 11:00AM CT

Presented by:

Esra Ozdenerol, PhD Director, GIS
Certificate Program
The University of Memphis

This presentation explores the application of Geographic Information Systems (GIS) in understanding and addressing cardiovascular diseases within the Tennessee Heart Health Network. It highlights how GIS is used to visualize spatial patterns, identify risk factors, and guide targeted interventions to improve cardiovascular health outcomes in the region.

Team-based Care

Processes for Interviews with Community-based Organizations

Tuesday, October 22, 2024, 12:00 PM CT

Presented by:

Adam Nelson
Data Integration Manager
Center for Transforming Communities

This presentation is focused on helping primary care practitioners learn how to identify and implement evidence-based practices and better understand resources for addressing social determinants of health (SDOH). The Center for Transforming Communities shares its experience in working with community-based organizations – that is, the groups that address SDOH and provide neighborhood specific-culturally competent care. These connections enhance primary care by addressing the social challenges that impact health outcomes.
